

DOCTOR: Worked Wednesday

"I didn't think about my safety," he said. "When you are there, people are crying, wounded and in need of help. You feel like you cannot do much."

On Sunday, Zouain received permission to board a U.S.-chartered cruise ship to Cyprus. He flew to Philadelphia a day later and then caught a flight to Fargo.

He arrived home Tuesday evening. By 7 a.m. Wednesday, he was in the operating room treating a patient.

Mixed feelings fill Zouain's heart. He was sad to leave his home country and sad to see the damage, but he felt a call back to Fargo. "My cancer patients need me here," he said.
